"Some schools are sending kids home with devices, workbooks and other resources — but many others may not. Either way, parents are left with a dual challenge: managing new ways of working, while not allowing their kids to disappear into social media and video games for weeks or months."

Coronavirus Triple Duty: Working, Parenting, And Teaching From Home

By Yuki Noguchi, NPR.ORG

<https://www.npr.org/2020/03/17/816631571/coronavirus-triple-duty-working-parenting-and-teaching-from-home>

"This is parenthood in the time of the coronavirus. It's demanding, emotional -- and to think I felt overwhelmed last month. For me and many others, managing the threat of the virus is adding a new and significant dose of domestic and emotional labor to our lives. If you are the mom in the family, odds are that most of this labor is falling in your lap."

How to survive coronavirus lockdown as a parent, especially moms who carry the burden

By Elissa Strauss, CNN

<https://www.cnn.ph/lifestyle/2020/3/16/How-to-survive-coronavirus-lockdown-as-a-parent.html>

Moms all over the world are exhausted, to put it mildly. Even if working from home isn't a huge adjustment, having little kids at home all day while we "work," is. For me personally, having a three year old at home with me all day has made working difficult. Even with a supportive husband who contributes, and grandparents who do virtual video learning for my daughter. Parents are now caught between a rock and a hard place, working crazy hours to simply make time for their normal work load.

I really don't get why the opening of classes is being continuously pressed to begin ASAP. So long as we can't see the end to this pandemic I don't think we should talk about this pa. Wala ng pera ang mga magulang, yung iba wala ding internet, cellphone, laptop, tv, and everyone is proly stressed out. Nakakalungkot lang na napag-iisipan na agad ito eh hindi pa nga ensured ang safety nating lahat.

this is only my opinion. i am a parent too. as parent, the WELFARE and SAFETY of my child is my top priority especially at this time of pandemic.

however, i do believe also that child should NOT STOP learning just because of this pandemic. we should start to adapt to a "NEW NORMAL" including our education system. we have to think out of the box on how can we provide education while keeping our child safe against this virus.

The best way for the PRIVATE SCHOOLS to do is to have interactive class online for the meantime.. the threat of COVID is still very evident. Private schools admin should think of alternative way to teach elementary and high school students online, in this way its a win win situation but I think there is a need to reduce fees since the student's family will shoulder the expenses of internet and computers

How do we report online? And do we have to stay online for 8 hrs also? How will you monitor us???

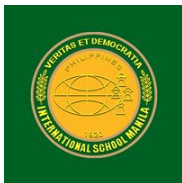

Paano kapag nahawa kame ng COVID, sasagutin ba ng DepEd ang LAHAT ng gastusin na sosobra sa allocated budget ng Philhealth?

Paano ang mga anak namen at ibang mga bata na mahahawa ng COVID in case need na magreport sa school, sasagutin din ba ng DepEd ang LAHAT ng gastusin?

INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL MANILA

"Our intended start date was August 10th, but my feeling is that this is too ambitious in the present circumstances. Accordingly, I have devised two calendars: one with a start date on August 24th and one starting September 1st. If we are not able to be back on campus on September 1st, we shall begin synchronous online learning on that day."

David Toze, Superintendent

SINGAPORE SCHOOL MANILA

"Please note that SY 2020-2021 will start on Sept. 1. Do note that at this point, we are doing online classes for the remainder of the Term. We are still on our last Term which will end mid June. In the event that schools are still closed by September due to the enhanced quarantine, we will continue with online classes for SY 2020-2021 until it is safe to go back to school."

Ina Ramos, Asst. School Administrator

BRITISH SCHOOL MANILA

"Given the uncertainty of the situation, school is temporarily closed. We will continue with our online and distance learning programme and will aim to give our community two weeks' notice of opening."

Chap Pallasigue, Admissions

NORD ANGLIA INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL

With regards to your question, should the government decide to extend our community quarantine until the end of the year, our students and your child will continue learning via the Nord Anglia Virtual School Experience, which is just as engaging and fun as our classes in campus. In fact, here are some of the videos of our students who are currently using this platform for their classes amidst the enhanced community quarantine in our area.

Of all the times I have walked the corridors of our school, the feeling of friendliness, energy and purpose which spills out from every teaching space still never ceases to amaze me to this day. Under normal circumstances, I would be delighted to meet you at school and show you first-hand, but with travel restrictions and campus closures in full effect here at the moment, that unfortunately won't be possible.

Thanks to technology however, what I can do at the moment is meet with you online. I would really like to get know your child and what sort of education you are wanting for him/her. I can tell you more about what makes our school special, and I have some wonderful photos and videos of our campus and community which will really bring the school to life for you. It's an opportunity to plan for a stable future for your son/daughter, in the face of an increasingly uncertain world.

If an online meeting isn't convenient immediately, you can also gain an insight into the engaging learning environment we create even when campus is closed by following our Facebook or Instagram, where each day we post examples of our teachers and their students learning through the Nord Anglia Virtual School Experience. We're so proud of all of them at this difficult time.

If there's one thing I'd like you to know about our school at this time it would be that our strength lies in our warm and vibrant global community. We also have engaging learning environments that ensure your son/daughter will love coming to school.

What we know so far.

- Parents, educators, and students who work and study from home are finding it challenging to function because of a lack of focus and a sense of being overwhelmed. Feelings of anxiety are brought about by the uncertain reality which they now suddenly face.
- The general public sees the government's pronouncements of resuming school operations with the imminent threat of the Corona Virus as insensitive, unprepared, and poses a threat to children's safety.
- Netizens view the adaptation of online distance education as a step forward in the right direction. Still, they are doubtful that it can be effective and does not have the same value as regular classroom education.
- Teachers' and parents' understanding of online distance education differs, and this shows a lack of preparedness on the part of many learning institutions and the education sector as a whole.
- International schools, their students, and educators seem to have the capacity for synchronous online distance learning. Apart from one outlier, most schools have not expressed this as a long term strategy giving the impression that they are expecting a return to normal soon.

Even though this initiative was spearheaded by one student, the spirit of volunteerism in a time of crisis gave this post relevance and weight.

Although the beneficiaries are within the ISM community, this post shows empathy. In a time when support from the government is lacking, this shows that ISM can take care of their indigent members.

Showing appreciation to rank and file, security guards, the people in the background that make things work is another example of empathy.

GERMAN EUROPEAN SCHOOL MANILA
APRIL 5 TO MAY 2, 2020

This capitalizes on the emotions of the audience and is relatable to non members of the community.

While this is another post that shows how the school is doing well, it also is relatable because it is trying to help the audience deal with a relatable problem.

Showing a tightly knit community is also relatable and shows again that in a time of crisis, you lean on those you trust.

FACEBOOK COMPETITIVE SCAN

What we know so far.

- The number of fans impacts the page performance metrics such as Number of Likes, Number of Comments. Singapore School Manila has the post with the most Likes (2,095) and Comments (200) despite having only five posts this month, and this is because it had 18,000 Fans.
- The posts that have the most interactions are content showing an effort by the school to be part of the hopeful and inspiring conversations about the Quarantine and the Coronavirus crisis.
- Posts about school activities and achievements tend to have lesser interaction because they appear to be less altruistic and relatable. However, posts about the school that offers to provide help or guides the audience tend to be more favorable to audiences.
- Real, unfiltered messages from students seem to have the highest interactions and appear authentic, honest, and heartfelt.
- There is an obvious preference shift. Audiences like posts that help, not sell.

PERSONAS : WHO ARE WE TALKING TO?

PERSONAS: WHO ARE WE TALKING TO?

Abigail, 42, Business Owner

- She co-owns a garden café in Tagaytay with her sister Leah but is now closed due to the quarantine. She hopes things will normalize soon, but already she is slowly rebuilding her clientele and offering products online.
- She recently organized a volunteer drive together with her entrepreneur friends and was able to raise money to purchase PPEs for the frontliners at a nearby hospital.
- Abigail is married to Frank, a British national employed as a country manager for a BPO firm. His work is the reason why they are in Manila and in 5 years time they will return to their home country.
- She has two girls, Martha, age seven, and Beatrice, age nine, currently enrolled at an International School and studying at home due to the quarantine.
- Her two kids receive their assignments online, and at their young age, they still need her attention because of the unclear instructions and also because her children are not used to working independently yet.
- She finds it challenging to manage her time between taking care of her kids, her business, and their household. Her husband, Frank, shares the load with her, but despite this, she feels overwhelmed.
- The quarantine poses a severe challenge to her family, and the uncertainty of her children's progress and health is a big concern for her.

PERSONAS: WHO ARE WE TALKING TO?

Jennifer 36, Mom & Career Humanitarian

- Jennifer works for Welthungerhilfe, an international humanitarian aid agency based in Germany. She met and got married to Manuel, a Filipino financial analyst working for Bloomberg in Germany.
- She recently took residence in Manila with her husband, Manuel. He is also involved in humanitarian work but for the Asian Development Bank. They are staying for a couple of years in the Philippines, Manuel's home country.
- They have a son named Dieter, five years old, who is preparing to enter Kindergarten, but because of the quarantine, Jennifer is finding it challenging to find an appropriate school for him.
- There are 30 plus international schools in Manila, and at face value, they all seem to be offering the same level of quality education expected of a learning institution. She is also looking at a school aligned with her values and looks at their social media pages for social proof.
- Jennifer, however, does not feel reassured. Her experience working within third world democracies and the overall lack of confidence by the local citizens on the resumption of classes makes for an uncertain reality.
- To both Jennifer and Manuel, humanitarian work is a lifelong passion. Having witnessed inequity around the world, they as parents now believe they should afford Dieter a better education, not to shield him from the world's problems, but rather to understand them better.

CHALLENGE

CHALLENGES

How can we

- Provide support to parents like Abigail and Jennifer in this time of quarantine to help alleviate their concerns?
- Help them manage their children's educational needs and, in so doing, improve their current situation?
- Guide them to discover a better way to give their children both short term goals of continuing quality education and the long term goals of sustaining it?
- Convince them that a pedagogical system rooted in a multicultural approach focusing on sustainability is beneficial to their child?

THE BIG IDEA

These are difficult times for the family.

Parents have the most challenging task ahead of them, and guaranteeing that their children are safe today is their primary concern.

Children also need nurturing and knowledge to grow, and parents know this instinctively. So they make the best of the situation.

The time spent with them forms bonds that last.

These are also uncertain times. The world faces the reality of a "new normal."

Parents now must realize that today's challenges have consequences that affect the future - their children's future.

So we must join hands with parents in sharing hope.

Hope for a future their children deserve.

A future to look forward to.

MARKETING STRATEGY

- Create a calendar and follow the posting schedule.
- Post on days where competitors are not active.
- Boost posts that are already doing well
- Always include an action for posts (Send Message, Visit Website etc)
- When boosting, target friends of fans of the page initially then create a custom audience and compare the performance of the post
- Set a maximum budget for boosting (Php 1000 per boost, once per week)
- Monitor and modify boosting parameters based on performance

CONTENT STRATEGY

CREATED CONTENT

SHOULD ACCOUNT
FOR 30% OF ENTIRE
SOCIAL MEDIA
CONTENT

Created content is original content that is written or produced by your company and lives on your website, blog, YouTube channel, etc. When you create your own content, you own it. Every piece of content you create represents your company's unique expertise, products, services, insights, and opinions.

- Demonstrates your position as a thought leader
- Showcases your unique voice, opinions, skills, and knowledge
- Boosts your credibility
- Cultivates deeper relationships with your existing audience

"Social marketing posts that link to company websites have a higher click-to-conversion rate (54%) than those that link to external sites."

CURATED CONTENT

SHOULD ACCOUNT
FOR 70% OF ENTIRE
SOCIAL MEDIA
CONTENT

Curated content is content from external sources outside of your company that you share with your audience on your website, blog, or social media channels. It should be relevant and useful to your target audience and demonstrate that you recognize the value that other companies bring to your industry or areas of interest.

- Cost efficient
- Time efficient
- Builds new relationships
- Provides your audience with alternative views and resources

"Social marketing posts that link to external sites get 33% more clicks than posts that link to company-owned sites"
